G DYNIA, Poland, Feb. 28.—Poland will never give up the corridor to Germany. Germany today has a truce with Poland. But if Germany wants permanent peace with Poland she will have to relinquish her claims to the corridor. If Germany wants the corridor, she will have to conquer Poland to get it.

This today is the strongest impression on a visit to the most remarkable city in Europe, here in the center of that corridor, which for fifteen years has been notorious as one sure cause of the war to come. The city is the only one in Europe not touched by the depression, the only city where building is going forward at breakneck speed, where traffic hums and business roars ahead.

And this city did not even exist when the corridor was created. It is the youngest city in Europe. It is the youngest port in the world. And already it has outstripped a dozen great ports of ancient fame.

NAME MYSTERY
As shipping men and politicians few persons outside of Poland know even today the name of this extraordinary place. In Polish it is Gdynia. Ten years ago a couple of hundred fishermen inhabited the coast line, and not even poles or politicians had heard of it.

Today on top of a cliff at the east end of the city stands an immense cross that blazes at night in electric lights. It blazes over a harbor that today carries more goods than Amsterdam or Copenhagen, more than Le Havre or Bordeaux, more than Bremen or Stockholm, more than Stettin or Danzig.

Where this electric cross now stands will be built a great cathedral. For Poland that cathedral will be the holiest in the nation. Because Gdynia is the only city that has been born in New Poland. Poland, not rich, has spent more than one hundred million dollars in gold on Gdynia. But that is not a fraction of what Gdynia means to Poland.

Gdynia means Polish resolution to make a commercial success of the New Poland. It means Polish determination to keep its own outlet to the sea. But above all it means the Poles will keep the corridor, to make it impossible for any Pole to think of giving it up.

NEEDED OUTLET
Fifteen years ago when the Polish corridor passed from German to Polish hands, it did so because Wilson agreed that Poland should have an outlet to the sea. Czechoslovakia had no such outlet. Czechoslovakia used the ports of other countries and has not suffered. There is plenty of argument to prove that Europe might have been saved its most insoluble problem if the corridor had never been cut through Germany.

The cutting of the corridor upset an existing condition. It became Germany's chief complaint. Even before Hitler came to power there was not a German, from Communist to national socialist, who would not swear that sooner or later the corridor must come back to Germany.

For without the corridor, declared the Germans, we cannot live. It cuts off East Prussia from the Reich. It severs a limb from our body.

That was all true fifteen years ago. Today, standing on the cliff overlooking Gdynia, one has to observe that an immense change has taken place. The Germans moved out of the corridor when it went Polish. According to the statistics of the Germans themselves, the Poles forced out and Germany helped to move out of Poland around 900,000 Germans, a great many out of the corridor itself. Thus, what was once German in population has now become Polish.

Having introduced medical testimony that Rheta Gardner Wynekoop's death was caused by the bullet which pierced her back, and not chloroform, Prosecutor Charles Dougherty said he would rest the state's case today.

That Dr. Wynekoop will be the principal witness in her own behalf was the assertion of W. W. Smith, defense attorney.

CO UNCIL DISCUSSES NEW TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Possible Location of Several New Ones in Safety Committee's Hands

NAME SHANER, TOO

Several Sites Discussed at Tuesday Meeting

The Safety committee of city council with Safety Director L. T. Shaner had under consideration, Wednesday, the problem of adding traffic lights to the city's system.

The matter was discussed at length, Tuesday evening, at an adjourned session of council when a motion was made to place the light question in the hands of the safety committee.

Safety Director Shaner broached the subject when he said a petition which was reported being prepared to prevent a light being placed at Court and High-sts had not materialized. An oil company's light was in operation there for a while but proved unsatisfactory and was ordered removed. When Mr. Shaner prepared to have another light placed there he was informed residents of the vicinity were objecting.

ASKED INSTRUCTIONS
He asked council what action he should take since the petition had not been presented. As a result the committee and director were jointly instructed to study the situation and the necessity for the light.

The discussion continued and location of several other traffic lights was advocated by councilmen. The Scioto and Mound-st corner was referred to as a dangerous one with a light badly needed, so was Franklin and Pickaway-sts, and Court and Mill-sts. Others of less importance were mentioned.

At the conclusion of the discussion the safety committee was instructed to investigate the advisability of adding traffic lights.

CITY ADDS LIGHTS

WILMINGTON, Feb. 28.—This city has 16 additional street lights following completion of a new 3-year contract with the Dayton Power and Light Co. The city now has 104 lights in the residential districts.

The new lighting program was made possible by a reduced scale of rates provided by the utility for the 3-year contract.

The new street lights were 'spotted' after a survey of city officials.

Approximately a score of persons witnessed the ruthless slaying.

Manchus Prepare To Crown Pu Yi

Ritualistic Ceremony Begins At Dawn Thursday In Asian Empire.

HSINKING (Changchun), Manchukuo, Feb. 28.—The "Heaven-ordained" Japanese-sponsored enthronement of Henry Pu Yi as emperor of Manchukuo will take place with elaborate ritualistic ceremonies beginning at dawn tomorrow (Wednesday) evening in the United States.

Drabness of this Manchukuo capital, which has not been decorated for the occasion, apathy toward the historical occasion, and an air-tight military guard over every detail of the ceremonies will be principal characteristics of the 28-year-old Pu Yi's ascension to this new Manchukuo throne.

High point of the day-long ritual will be the religious ceremony at altar of Heaven, hidden in secret behind a 10-foot wall of yellow bunting, located on a windswept plain five miles from the city. Foreigners will be barred absolutely from seeing any part of this rite.

The day will begin with a procession from the palace to the altar of Heaven before the sun is up. Along the five-mile route, thousands of soldiers, carrying guns with cocked triggers, will face spectators, standing in three lines spaced about 20 feet apart.

This was but one phase of the exhaustive precautions the Japanese authorities have taken to prevent a possible attempt upon the life of the emperor-designate, who himself will ride in a three-ton armored car of American make.

CHILLICOTHE FACES PETITION CONTEST

Paper Circulated Seeking Vote In November on Hiring Gas Rate Engineers.

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 28.—Attacks have been launched in city council against circulation of petitions to refer the matter of the employment of Burns and McDonnell, the city's gas rate investigators, to a vote next November.

Council has also considered employment of John Blosser, local attorney, to help Solicitor Phil Butler in the gas rate case.

Mayor Walter Barrett charged misrepresentation in seeking signatures to a petition which would prevent council from acting in the gas question at least until after the vote. An added charge, Mayor Barrett said the petitions were invalid because a certified copy had not been filed in advance with the city clerk. Mayor Barrett said he had been falsely quoted by circulators as favoring the referendum petition.

Mortimer Friedman, president of the Citizens' committee, said he thought something should be done to combat the gas company's alleged paid propaganda and if necessary appropriate money for advertising to enlighten the people.

LANCASTER IS SUED FOR WATER DAMAGE

LANCASTER, Feb. 28.—The City of Lancaster was named defendant Tuesday in three actions for $8,550 brought by Lancaster florists who claim the water supplied since installation of a water sewerer has killed their plants.

'MERC' AT 11 BELOW, CLIMBING

Low Figure Brings Surprise; Weather Blamed For Automobile Accident.

Warmer weather was predicted on the way today after the temperature reached a new low of 11 degrees below zero Wednesday morning. The figure reported by Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer, surprised many who believed the morning warmer than Tuesday when it reached 10 below.

The highest temperature reached Tuesday was 21 degrees, according to the government thermometer. It is believed the mercury will reach the 25 mark or higher today.

The weather was blamed for the wreck of Bernard "Nick" Nebel's Chevrolet car early Wednesday.

'HOOKERS' WARNED

Mayor W. B. Cady issued a warning, Wednesday, that youths who 'hook' rides on the rear of automobiles with their sleds are subject to arrest in addition to possibly fatal injuries.

In warning youths who follow this practice, Mayor Cady cited the dangers of the 'sport' and said that policemen had orders to bring violators to the station. One incident of a local youth's sled being crushed by an automobile happened Tuesday, the mayor was informed.

Wednesday at Bunker hill, south of Windfield, ice forming on the windshield caused Nebel to miss the road and strike a telephone pole.

He was not injured and neither were four others in his car. The damaged car was taken to the E. E. Clifton garage.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 28.—All highways on the state system were reported open and comparatively safe for travel today by Highway Director O. W. Merrell.

State Route-5, S. 62 from Columbus to New Albany and State Route 76 in Guernsey county, which were closed by the heavy snowfall early this week, were again handling the normal flow of traffic.

Merrell warned motorists to exercise caution in driving. Slippery conditions still prevail in some localities, although state highway workers have rendered the highways less dangerous for motor traffic by applications of sand and cinders on curves hills and intersections.

By International News Service.
Although the ground is frozen and melting snows will be carried into streams and rivers, there is no danger of floods in Ohio, river experts agreed today.

Slight rains and melting temperatures are predicted for tomorrow, but it would take a cloudburst to present any threat of floods, it was stated. The eight inches of snow on the ground in most sections of the state amounts to approximately only eight-tenths of an inch of water.

TEACHERS TO HEAR FICHTER AND MOUIS

Meeting of County Teachers Set For Saturday at Perry-Twp School

A minuet, other musical numbers and readings are scheduled in addition to the talks.

Lunch will be served at the noon hour by the Ladies aid of the Atlanta Methodist church. The monthly meeting of superintendents will be held in the afternoon.

$350,000 ESTIMATED DAMAGE BY FLAMES

COLUMBUS, Feb. 28.—Nearly 4,000 spectators braved the near-zero weather last night to watch city firemen battle the city's first three-alarm fire in the past 20 years.

The blaze, which burned the Farmers' Fertilizer Co. plant to the ground, took an estimated toll of $350,000.

Firemen were hampered by the bitter cold and the snow, blown into deep drifts.

The plant, which covers more than half a city block, was located just outside the city limits, and the fire fighters had to be summoned by telephone.

Underwood's Silence Holds Attention of Candidates.

Opposition to the candidacy of Earl L. Hoffman for the Democratic nomination for reelection as treasurer was learned, Wednesday, when Edward E. McClarren, Logan-st, announced himself as a candidate.

Mr. McClarren's announcement came from Detroit where he has been spending the winter. His communication said he would return home in the early spring to start his campaign.

The name of another local man has been mentioned freely as a possible candidate for the treasurer's nomination on the Democratic ticket.

NEW CWA PLAN BEING FORMED

Relief Population To Be Classified In Three Groups, President Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Coincident with the demobilization of the CWA, set for mid-May, President Roosevelt and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins have completed a new program for caring on the work of relief for needy and unemployed, it was announced today.

They believe that the $950,000,000 recently supplied by Congress will be sufficient to carry on until the end of this fiscal year, June 30, and the new fiscal year which starts July 1. Half a billion dollars has been allotted for the new fiscal year.

While details remain to be worked out, the president revealed today that the relief population after CWA is demobilized will be classified in three groups: (1) Distressed families in farm areas; (2) So-called "landless" elements in small communities where industries have disappeared or languished; and (3) unemployed in the large cities.

The program of attack on the problems of the rural needy, Mr. Roosevelt explained, was a part of the agricultural program. Efforts to help these people will be directed towards removing them from dependence upon a single cash crop. The aim will be to bring the farmers into a program of diversified crops.

Immediate Cash Payment of Bonus Defeated, 64-24, in Upper House

BENEFITS BOOSTED

Conference Effort to Bring Lower House Battle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(INS) The drive for restoration of full government pay and liberalization of veterans benefits was transferred to a sympathetic House today after the Senate took a huge slice out of the Economy act.

A broad liberalization program, affecting millions of government employees, war veterans and their dependents, was written into the bill by the Senate in the face of mild threats of a presidential veto. These threats failed to curb the hopes of liberal leaders for prompt approval of the program by the House.

BONUS DEFEATED

The administration won one real victory, after a succession of defeats in the Senate. This was the Senate's rejection by a vote of 64 to 24 of a proposal for immediate cash payment of adjusted service compensation certificates for World War veterans. It served to kill the cash bonus issue for the present session of Congress, and made the House drive for this goal impotent. It was entirely in line with the president's wishes.

A sharp dispute arose over the cost of the liberalization program. Senator Byrnes (D) of South Carolina, administration spokesman, estimated the pay and veterans' amendments would cost $354,000,000 a year. Senator Steiwer (R) of Oregon, one of the program's authors, estimated it would cost $330,000,000 a year.

Steiwer declared all pay and veterans concessions voted by the Senate, would cost but $100,000,000 more annually than those provided by the administration. He put this into $63,000,000 on pay benefits, $11,700,000 on medical American war benefits and the remainder on scattered other items. Byrnes was silent of a comparison of the costs.

In the House, members appeared more concerned for the moment over their own pay cut, as voted by the House last week. The bill, many members protested against barring government officials, drawing $6,000 or more a year, from the provision restoring (Continued on Page Two)

Pretty Doctor's Alibi Attacked

Dr. Dean Testifies She Was at Home Night Kennedy Died of Alleged Poison.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 28.—An effort by the state to smash Dr. Sara Ruth Dean's alibi that she was home in bed on the night of the alleged poisoning of Dr. J. Preston Kennedy was to be made today at the young pediatricist's trial for murder.

Alert and seemingly recovered from her recent illness, Dr. Dean will insist that the last time she saw Dr. Kennedy was on the night of July 25, two days before the supposed "love trial" poisoning.

To support her alibi, Dr. Dean has the testimony of her aunt and cousin, Mrs. J. H. Boyd and Noy Boyd, with whom she was living in Greenwood at the time of Dr. Kennedy's death.

The state will try to establish not only that Dr. Dean visited Dr. Kennedy in the latter's medical building on the night of July 27, but held a "love trial" party with him there and brought it to a close by putting bicarbonate of soda into his cocktail.

NAME SHANER, TOO

Several Sites Discussed at Tuesday Meeting

The Safety committee of city council with Safety Director L. T. Shaner had under consideration, Wednesday, the problem of adding traffic lights to the city's system.

The matter was discussed at length, Tuesday evening, at an adjourned session of council when a motion was made to place the light question in the hands of the safety committee.

Safety Director Shaner broached the subject when he said a petition which was reported being prepared to prevent a light being placed at Court and High-sts had not materialized. An oil company's light was in operation there for a while but proved unsatisfactory and was ordered removed. When Mr. Shaner prepared to have another light placed there he was informed residents of the vicinity were objecting.

ASKED INSTRUCTIONS
He asked council what action he should take since the petition had not been presented. As a result the committee and director were jointly instructed to study the situation and the necessity for the light.

The discussion continued and location of several other traffic lights was advocated by councilmen. The Scioto and Mound-st corner was referred to as a dangerous one with a light badly needed, so was Franklin and Pickaway-sts, and Court and Mill-sts. Others of less importance were mentioned.

CITY ADDS LIGHTS

WILMINGTON, Feb. 28.—This city has 16 additional street lights following completion of a new 3-year contract with the Dayton Power and Light Co. The city now has 104 lights in the residential districts.

The new lighting program was made possible by a reduced scale of rates provided by the utility for the 3-year contract.

The new street lights were "spotted" after a survey of city officials.

Manchus Prepare To Crown Pu Yi

Ritualistic Ceremony Begins At Dawn Thursday In Asian Empire.

HSINKING (Changchun), Manchukuo, Feb. 28.—The "Heaven-ordained," Japanese-sponsored enthronement of Henry Pu Yi as emperor of Manchukuo will take place with elaborate ritualistic ceremonies beginning at dawn tomorrow (Wednesday) evening in the United States.

Drabness of this Manchukuo capital, which has not been decorated for the occasion, apathy toward the historical occasion, and an air-tight ritual will be the religious ceremony at altar of Heaven, hidden in secret behind a 10-foot wall of yellow bunting, located on a windswept plain five miles from the city. Foreigners will be barred absolutely from seeing any part of this rite.

The day will begin with a procession from the palace to the altar of Heaven before the sun is up. Along the five-mile route thousands of soldiers, carrying guns with cocked triggers, will face spectators, standing in three lines spaced about 20 feet apart.

This was but one phase of the exhaustive precautions the Japanese authorities have taken to prevent a possible attempt upon the life of the emperor-designate, who himself will ride in a three-ton armored car of American make.

CHILLICOTHE FACES PETITION CONTEST

Paper Circulated Seeking Vote In November on Hiring Gas Rate Engineers.

CHILLICOTHE, Feb. 28.—Attacks have been launched in city council against circulation of petitions to refer the matter of the employment of Burns and McDonald, the city's gas rate investigators, to a vote next November.

Council has also considered employment of John Blosser, local attorney, to help Solicitor Phil Butler in the gas rate case.

Mayor Walter Barrett charged misrepresentation in seeking signatures to a petition which would prevent council from acting in the gas question at least until after the vote. As an added charge, Mayor Barrett said the petitions were invalid because a certified copy had not been filed in advance with the city clerk. Mayor Barrett said he had been falsely quoted by circulators as favoring the referendum petition.

Mortimer Friedman, president of the Citizens' committee, said he thought something should be done to combat the gas company's alleged paid propaganda and if necessary appropriate money for advertising to enlighten the people.

The plant, which covers more than half a city block, was located just outside the city limits, and the fire fighters had to be summoned by telephone.

'MERC' AT 11 BELOW, CLIMBING

Low Figure Brings Surprise; Weather Blamed For Automobile Accident.

Warmer weather was predicted on the way today after the temperature reached a new low of 11 degrees below zero Wednesday morning. The figure reported by Dr. H. R. Clarke, weather observer, surprised many who believed the morning warmer than Tuesday when it reached 10 below.

'HOOKERS' WARNED

Mayor W. B. Cady issued a warning, Wednesday, that youths who "hook" rides on the rear of automobiles with their sleds are subject to arrest in addition to possibly fatal injuries.

In warning youths who follow this practice, Mayor Cady cited the dangers of the "sport" and said that policemen had orders to bring violators to the station. One incident of a local youth's sled being crushed by an automobile happened Tuesday, the mayor was informed.

Wednesday at Bunker hill, south of Bloomfield, ice forming on the windshield caused Nebel to miss the road and strike a telephone pole.

He was not injured and neither were four others in his car. The damaged car was taken to the E. E. Clifton garage.

COLUMBUS, Feb. 28.—All highways on the state system were reported open and comparatively safe for travel today by Highway Director O. W. Merrell.

State Route-U. S. 62 from Columbus to New Albany and State route 76 in Guernsey county, which were closed by the heavy snowfall early this week, were again handling the normal flow of traffic.

Merrell warned motorists to exercise caution in driving. Slippery conditions still prevail in some localities, although state highway workers have rendered the highways less dangerous for motor traffic by applications of sand and cinders on curves hills and intersections.

By International News Service
Although the ground is frozen and melting snows will be carried into streams and rivers, there is no danger of floods in Ohio, river experts agreed today.

Slight rains and melting temperatures are predicted for tomorrow, but it would take a cloudburst to present any threat of floods, it was stated. The eight inches of snow on the ground in most sections of the state amounts to approximately only eight-tenths of an inch of water.

The sheriff said Gleason, in custody at the Delaware-co jail had made a confession.

The sickly youth of 110 pounds stated in his alleged confession he first stunned his father with a steel taken off a meat block in his father's store, where the crime was committed. Then, he said, "I shot him in the head three times with a small revolver."

Continuing his confession, young Gleason said: "I looked outdoors and saw some kids on the street. I pushed and dragged by father's body downstairs to the basement. Then I tried to put it in the furnace where I thought I could save our family some expense by cremating it."

NEW CWA PLAN BEING FORMED

Relief Population To Be Classified In Three Groups, President Says.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Coincident with the demobilization of the CWA, set for mid-May, President Roosevelt and Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins have completed a new program for carrying on the work of relief for needy and unemployed, it was announced today.

They believe that the $950,000,000 recently supplied by Congress will be sufficient to carry on until the end of this fiscal year, June 30, and the new fiscal year which starts July 1. Half a billion dollars has been allotted for the new fiscal year.

While details remain to be worked out, the president revealed today that the relief population after CWA is demobilized will be classified in three groups: (1) Distressed families in farm areas; (2) So-called "standby" elements in small communities where industries have disappeared or languished; and (3) unemployed in the large cities.

The program of attack on the problems of the rural needy, Mr. Roosevelt explained, was a part of the agricultural program. Efforts to help these people will be directed towards removing them from dependence upon a single cash crop. The aim will be to bring these farmers into a program of diversified crops.

Immediate Cash Payment of Bonus Defeated, 64-24, in Upper House

BENEFITS BOOSTED

Conference Effort to Bring Lower House Battle

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(INS) The drive for restoration of full government pay and liberalization of veterans benefits was transferred to a sympathetic House today after the Senate took a huge slice out of the Economy act.

A broad liberalization program, affecting millions of government employees, war veterans and their dependents, was written into the bill by the Senate in the face of mild threats of a presidential veto. These threats failed to curb the hopes of liberal leaders for prompt approval of the program by the House.

BONUS DEFEATED

The administration won one real victory, after a succession of defeats in the Senate. This was the Senate's rejection by a vote of 64 to 24 of a proposal for immediate cash payment of adjusted service compensation certificates for World War veterans. It served to kill the cash bonus issue for the present session of Congress and made a House drive for this goal impotent. It was entirely in line with the president's wishes.

A sharp dispute arose over the cost of the liberalization program. Senator Byrnes (D) of South Carolina, administration spokesman, estimated the pay and veteran's amendments would cost $354,000,000 a year. Senator Steiwer (R) of Oregon, one of the program's authors, estimated it would cost $330,000,000 a year.

Steiwer declared all pay and veterans concessions, voted by the Senate, would cost but $100,000,000 more annually than those proposed by the administration. He divided this into $63,000,000 on payrolls, $18,000,000 on World War benefits, $11,700,000 on Spanish American war benefits and the remainder on scattered reforms. Byrnes was silent of a comparison of the costs.

In the House, members appeared more concerned for the moment over their own pay cut, as voted by the Senate, than over the fate of the bill. Many members protested against barring government officials, drawing $6,000 or more a year, from the provision, restoring

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

It may be just a dream but Circleville has a location which would make an ideal recreation ball park; that is the lot in the rear of the Southern Ohio Electric Co. power plant. * A little work and a little money would make this location one of the best in central Ohio. *

The field was used for corn last summer and plowed clear beyond a row of trees which stood in right field. * It was also cultivated east as far as the hill. * The city administration has promised if the field can be obtained from the utility that the service department's tools, roller, etc., can be used to condition that ball park. *

Another thing that is not beyond possibility is erection of bleachers on the mound-st bank. * This of course would result in considerable expense and will probably not again be thought of, but such a bleacher would provide seats for many fans who would not otherwise attend the games. * Plans are not in the embryonic stage for a city league as well as an inter city league and it looks like Circleville will have plenty of recreation ball this summer. *

Two members of the Ohio Wesleyan cage team, Clovis Stark and Howard Stammer, have been named on the Associated Press all-Buckeye team.

Stark, who played center a large part of the year, was placed as forward and Stammer is guard. * Lawrence Gill of Marshall is the other forward, Carl Austin, of Cincinnati is the center and Elwood Pitzer of Wittenberg is the other guard. *

Two other Wesleyan men, Prech, forward, and Talos, guard, are on the second team. * It is the first time in a number of years that Ohio U. has not placed a man on the first team, Beanie Berens, of Lancaster, named center on the second team is the only man to receive mention. *

It appears that Ohio State may lose Ernie Godfrey, line coach under William. * Boston U. is negotiating for his services. *

ating table in the basement of the Wynekoop residence.

She will deny all knowledge of how her daughter-in-law met death with a pistol bullet in her back and chloroform in her lungs, Attorney Smith said. Dr. Wynekoop's defense will be that she came upon the body last Nov. 21 when she entered the operating room on an errand five hours after death had occurred.

Dr. Wynekoop has repudiated a signed statement given to police in which she stated that Rheta died from an accidental overdose of anesthetic while submitting to an examination by the doctor and that a bullet was then fired into the lifeless body.

NOT CALL HUSBAND

Attorneys for the defense stated that the husband of the slain girl, Earle Wynekoop, would not be called upon to testify. Dr. Alice's daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, and another son, Walker Wynekoop, will take the stand, however.

Prosecutors brought their case to a climax with the medical testimony of Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer and Dr. Jerry Kearns. They declared that the findings of three autopsies showed that the bullet and resulting hemorrhage caused the girl's death, although a quantity of chloroform was found in Rheta's lungs.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in pimples. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes three good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and on." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 23c a dozen. © 1934 C. M. Co.

full pay after July 1. Rep. Connelly (D) of Massachusetts, said full pay was needed to eliminate the danger of "bribery."

SEEK CONFERENCE

Administration House leaders hoped to secure consent to send the bill to conference, where they might force adoption of the president's own program, liberalizing amendments. In such event, the liberals predicted the House would approve the Senate program in toto. A decision may not be reached for several days.

The bill as it passed the Senate would:

1. Eliminate one-third of the government pay out of Feb. 1, for remainder of this fiscal year. Cost, $26,993,000.

2. Restore full government pay after July 1, excepting officials drawing $6,000 or more outside the judiciary. Cost, $189,000,000 a year, less exceptions.

3. Restore full compensation rates to veterans, with direct service connected disabilities. Cost about $12,500,000 a year.

4. Restore all presumptive disability cases to compensation rolls at rating held on March 19, 1933. Cost estimated at $30,000,000 by American Legion; at $44,933,000 by veterans bureau.

5. Restore pension to widows and dependents of presumptively disabled veterans, who died after being dropped from the rolls under the economy act. Cost, negligible.

6. Hospitalize all veterans unable to care for themselves. Cost, about $8,000,000 a year.

7. Restore pre-economy retirement pay rates to retired emergency officers of the army, navy and marine corps. Cost, $2,900,000 a year.

8. Limit to ten percent of the amount paid March 19, 1933, any reduction in pensions for Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection or Boxer rebellion veterans, their widows or dependents. Cost, estimated by Bvnes at $69,964,000; by veterans bureau and Spanish-American war organization at $61,700,000.

9. Provide double pensions (at a rate of $14 a month) for widows and dependents of aviators killed in the Akron, Shenandoah and J-3 disasters. Cost negligible.

DIFFERENCES RATED

The principal difference between this program and that advanced by the administration touched the treatment of veterans in presumptive disability cases and the restoration of full pay after July 1. The administration was willing to restore all presumptive to compensation rolls temporarily, pending new hearings, but at only 75 percent of the compensation they received on March 19, 1933. The administration would not relax its rules governing decisions as to the origin of disabilities in presumptive cases, while the liberal program would keep those men on the rolls, except for fraud, error or misconduct.

In the pay cut fight, the administration agreed to the immediate five percent restoration but insisted on limiting the July 1 restoration to two-thirds of the present 15 percent slash. The liberals insisted on full pay after that date.

There were other differences. On hospitalization of needy veterans, the president, by executive order, has granted permission for taking them into government institutions. The Senate plan would compel hospitalization up to full capacity of the government hospitals. The president's plan was permissive; the senate's directive.

The fight in the House will be over the issue of sending the bill to conference. If the administration can do that, it has a chance of modifying the Senate program.

in the furnace feet first and then head first," said the youth. "The legs dangled like a hose, and one foot was burned badly before I gave it up."

According to the confession, Gleason said that he then dragged the body near an ice machine and closed a valve which he believed would cause the machine to explode and destroy all evidence of the crime. He said that he then hurried upstairs and put a card in the front door which read "be back in a few minutes."

Gleason then went back downstairs and fired another bullet in his father's head to be sure he was dead. He said he then crossed the street and entered the home of his sister, Mrs. Pearl Jefferson, and took a seat by the window to see the explosion.

The youth said that while he waited he saw his mother enter the store and he feared the ice machine would explode and kill her. He rushed across the street and opened the door of the machine and his mother, discovered the body. Mrs. Jefferson, the sister, was called and notified the coroner.

Judge Urges Speed In Pierpont Trial; Scoffs at Ouster

LIMA, Feb. 28.—An effort to delay the trial of Harry Pierpont, alleged trigger man in the Dillinger gang's slaying of Sheriff Jess Barber, today had met with the determined opposition of Judge E. F. Everett.

Charles Long and William M. Fogarty, counsellors for Pierpont, yesterday challenged Judge Everett's right to sit in the trial, which is scheduled to begin next Tuesday. The judge replied that he could see no reason why he should not occupy the bench during the trial.

Judge Everett pointed out that he does not know Pierpont and that he was not in Lima last October when the Dillinger mob allegedly broke into the Lima jail, murdered Sheriff Barber, and released John Dillinger leader of the gang.

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

IT may be just a dream but Circleville has a location which would make an ideal recreation ball park; that is the lot in the rear of the Southern Ohio Electric Co. power plant. A little work and a little money would make this location one of the best in central Ohio.

The field was used for corn last summer and plowed clear beyond a row of trees which stood in right field. It was also cultivated east as far as the hill. The city administration has promised if the field can be obtained from the utility that the service department's tools, rakes, etc., can be used to condition that ball park.

Another thing that is not beyond possibility is erection of bleachers on the mound-st bank. This of course would result in considerable expense and will probably not again be thought of, but such a bleacher would provide seats for many fans who would not otherwise attend the games. Plans are now in the embryonic stage for a city league as well as an inter city league and it looks like Circleville will have plenty of recreation ball this summer.

Two members of the Ohio Wesleyan cage team, Clovis Stark and Howard Stammler have been named on the Associated Press All-Buckeye team. Stark, who played center a large part of the year, was placed at forward and Stammler is guard. Lawrence Gill of Marshall is the other forward, Carl Austin, of Cincinnati is the center and Elwood Pitzer of Wittenberg is the other guard. Two other Wesleyan men, Prech, forward, and Talos, guard, are on the second team. It is the first time in a number of years that Ohio U. has not placed a man on the first team, Beanie Berens of Lancaster, named center on the second team is the only man to receive mention.

It appears that Ohio State may lose Ernie Godfrey, line coach under William Boston U. is negotiating for his services.

ating table in the basement of the Wynekoop residence. She will deny all knowledge of how her daughter-in-law met death with a pistol bullet in her back and chloroform in her lungs, Attorney Smith said. Dr. Wynekoop's defense will be that she came upon the body last Nov. 21 when she entered the operating room on an errand five hours after death had occurred.

Dr. Wynekoop has repudiated a signed statement given to police in which she stated that Rheta died from an accidental overdose of anesthetic while submitting to an examination by the doctor and that a bullet was then fired into the lifeless body.

NOT CALL HUSBAND
Attorneys for the defense stated that the husband of the slain girl, Earle Wynekoop, would not be called upon to testify. Dr. Alice's daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, and another son, Walker Wynekoop, will take the stand, however.

Prosecutors brought their case to a climax with the medical testimony of Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer and Dr. Jerry Kearns. They declared that the findings of three autopsies showed that the bullet and resulting hemorrhage caused the girl's death although a quantity of chloroform was found in Rheta's lungs.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed In the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned. It takes the good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 26cat drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

full pay after July 1. Rep. Conery (D) of Massachusetts, said full pay was needed to eliminate the danger of "bribery."

SEEK CONFERENCE

Administration House leaders hoped to secure consent to send the bill to conference, where they might force adoption of the president's own program, liberalizing amendments. In such event, the liberals predicted the House would approve the Senate program en toto. A decision may not be reached for several days.

The bill as it passed the Senate would:

1. Eliminate one-third of the government pay cut as of Feb. 1, for remainder of this fiscal year. Cost, $26,993,000.
2. Restore full government pay after July 1, excepting officials drawing $6,000 or more outside the judiciary. Cost, $189,000,000 a year, less exceptions.
3. Restore full compensation rates to veterans, with direct service connected disabilities. Cost about $12,500,000 a year.
4. Restore all presumptive disability cases to compensation rolls at rating held on March 19, 1933. Cost estimated at $30,000,000 by American Legion; at $44,923,000 by veterans bureau.
5. Restore pension to widows and dependents of presumptively disabled veterans, who died after being dropped from the rolls under the economy act. Cost, negligible.
6. Hospitalize all veterans unable to care for themselves. Cost, about $8,000,000 a year.
7. Restore pre-economy retirement pay rates to retired emergency officers of the army, navy and marine corps. Cost, $2,900,000 a year.
8. Limit to ten percent of the amount paid March 19, 1933, any reduction in pensions for Spanish-American war, Philippine insurrection or Boxer rebellion veterans, their widows or dependents. Cost, estimated by Byrnes at $69,964,000; by veterans bureau and Spanish-American war organizations at $61,700,000.
9. Provide double pensions (at a rate of $44 a month) for widows and dependents of aviators killed in the Akron, Shenandoah and J-3 disasters. Cost negligible.

DIFFERENCES RATED

The principal difference between this program and that advanced by the administration touched the treatment of veterans in presumptive disability cases and the restoration of full pay after July 1. The administration was willing to restore all presumptive to compensation rolls temporarily, pending new hearings, but at only 75 percent of the compensation they received on March 19, 1933. The administration would not relax its rules governing decisions as to the origin of disabilities in presumptive cases, while the liberal program would keep these men on the rolls, except for fraud, error or misconduct.

In the pay cut fight, the administration agreed to the immediate five percent restoration but insisted on limiting the July 1 restoration to two-thirds of the present 15 percent slash. The liberals insisted on full pay after that date. There were other differences. On hospitalization of needy veterans, the president, by executive order, has granted permission for taking them into government institutions. The Senate plan would compel hospitalization up to full capacity of the government hospitals. The president's plan was permissive; the senate's directive.

The fight in the House will be over the issue of sending the bill to conference. If the administration can do that, it has a chance of modifying the Senate program.

KNAVE'S GIRL

By JOAN CLAYTON
COPYRIGHT 1932, KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

To help support her stepmother and stepbrother, young and beautiful Patricia Warren, a skilled card player, plays bridge for fifty cents an hour at parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Sycott. Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, offers to make Pat his secretary and partner. His amorous advances cause Pat to decline his business offer much to her stepmother's chagrin. Pat meets Clark Tracy, the polo player and her ideal, at Mrs. Sycott's. She is heartbroken to learn he is engaged to the socially prominent Marthe March. Bill McGee, a racketeer, is interested in Pat but she loathes him. However, afraid to refuse his invitation, she accompanies him to a New Year's Eve dance. He is shot by a rival gangster. Frantic, Pat rushes home only to be put out by her stepmother who says the police are looking for Pat. Unable to find employment, Pat turns to professional bridge. Haverholt renews his bridge business offer. Pat accepts. Meeting Pat at Haverholt's home, Clark does not recognize her. Haverholt introduces her as his niece. After the men go, Pat is indignant at Haverholt's pretense. He explains he introduced her as his niece to protect her reputation. Pat is tempted to leave, but Haverholt urges her to stay in the role of his niece, promising her a successful future.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"But if it were found out?"
He said very gravely, "That's one of the chances I spoke of, one of the chances that you and I must take. People know you, the people at the Beaucarme, the people in your block; anyone of them might possibly learn overnight that Patricia Warren had become Patricia Haverholt. That would be bad—bad for both of us." He could be as practical as she could be. He paused, his brows knitted, considering. He resumed very slowly, "I think such an eventuality is happily unlikely. New York is a big town full of a thousand cliques. The society you will move in will be far removed from the Hotel Beaucarme, from all the people you used to know. And, I assure you that your reputation as Patricia Haverholt will be much more secure than your reputation as Patricia Warren. As my niece your tactical position will be many times stronger than your position would be as my secretary. Well, Patricia?"

"I'll stay," she said simply.
"Patricia had made her decision. She felt exhausted, a sudden emptiness. She leaned upon the pillows of the divan, spent and pale, one lock of red hair falling across her forehead, her dark eyes following Haverholt as he strode up and down the room, making swift and judicious plans for the future.
"It's nearly eight now," he was saying. "Mrs. Ellis should be back at any minute; she's my housekeeper, the butler's wife, I'll have her clear out a suite for you. Would you like to go for your clothes while she straightens up your room? You'll want your clothes tonight, won't you, Patricia?"
"I suppose so," she assented wearily. "I haven't so much as a toothbrush with me."
"Better to get everything settled now," he agreed. He paused, asked abruptly, "What sort of a story will you tell your stepmother?"
"My stepmother?" repeated Patricia. She said quickly, "I haven't lived at home for some months. I've had a room by myself since the first of the year. Something happened then that—"
He raised his hand.
"You needn't explain unless you choose. I make no pretence that my own life is an open book."
"There's nothing to explain," said the girl. "Anyhow it's not a secret. On New Year's Eve I went out with a man, a cheap neighborhood bully, a neighborhood boy on the make, a sort of small-time racketeer I guess you'd call him. I was with Bill McGee in an uptown speakeasy when he was shot."

Haverholt's eyebrows went up. They were very black beneath his snow-white hair. He looked startled and perturbed.
He said, "Murdered?"
"No, sometimes I wish he had been," replied Patricia bitterly. She amended quickly, "Of course I don't mean that. It's hard not to wish it, though. Bill McGee is an enemy of mine now. He thought I should have stuck with him that night. I didn't; I ran away. He's still in the hospital but I haven't felt exactly safe. I guess my stepmother hasn't either. You see, Bill has threatened me and he is the head of a neighborhood gang." She spread her hands. "You know how those things are."

Haverholt regarded her perplexedly.
"Did you ever care for the man, Patricia?"
"I hated him always."
"Then why—"
"Why did I go out with him? I was afraid not to," she admitted very simply.
In a few brief and eloquent words she painted for him the fears, the worries, the anxieties of the small New York shopkeeper, Lillian Warren must keep in good with the boys or starve. And Patricia, a child of the streets, had grown in to lovely girlhood to face that condition. She had gone out with Bill McGee. She must, lest Bill McGee wreck his vengeance upon the business and so deprive them all of a livelihood. It was as natural to her as the fact that two plus two equals four, just as Bill's enmity was natural.

As she finished, he said almost roughly, "I'll take care of you now, young woman. If this Bill McGee so much as lays a finger on you, I can take care of myself."
"I wouldn't wonder if you could!"
"Anyhow," said Patricia, "Bill is still in the hospital. And he'd never dream of hunting for me here, would he?"
"I'd like to see him try. I'd like to see him stick his nose past that door just once! Mr. McGee would go back to the hospital so fast that he'd scarcely realize he'd ever left it."

The man smiled at his own fury. Patricia found that fury oddly comforting. Her feelings about Julian Haverholt had undergone a strange reversal. Curious that she should consider him now as a protector, curious that her fears and doubts of him should have been transformed into this almost child-like confidence in his wisdom and his strength.

A few minutes later the servants returned from their outing in the country—Ellis, the butler, Annie Ellis, the housekeeper and Otto, the chauffeur. Patricia was introduced to each in turn.

"Annie, this is my young niece, Miss Patricia Haverholt. She is coming to live with us. Isn't that splendid?"
"Indeed it is, sir. Maybe she can get you out of the house once in a while, away from that card playing."

Haverholt laughed.
"Annie believes in lots of exercise," he explained. "She knows all too well that I get mine stepping in and out of taxis."
Patricia had dreaded this meeting. Now she saw that she need not have. His servants adored Julian Haverholt. If they doubted his story no one would ever have guessed it. He had said that Patricia was his niece; very well then she was!
"Shall I freshen up the blue suite right away?" hesitated Annie Ellis. "If you will, please," replied Haverholt. "I'll get Miss Haverholt a personal maid tomorrow."
"There's no reason why I shouldn't maid for her," protested the other, offendedly.
"None at all," affirmed Patricia and thereby made Annie Ellis a friend for life. She added candidly, "I've never had a personal maid or any kind of maid before."
That last statement decided the three servants. They were prepared to adore the shy, pretty, red-haired girl as they adored Julian Haverholt. She had become as much their charge as his. They were ready to defend her against the world.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Dorothea Wieck, who gave so brilliant a performance in "Maedchen in Uniform," appears Wednesday and Thursday on the screen of the Cliftona Theatre in her first American starring appearance. She has the principal role of "Cradle Song," a moving story of frustrated mother love behind convent walls.

Miss Wieck is the newest Continental star to come to Hollywood to take her place beside such performers as Marlene Dietrich and Greta Garbo.

She was signed by Paramount to fill the role of Joanna in "Cradle Song," a part similar in spirit to the one she played in her Continental film. As in "Maedchen in Uniform," she lavishes her love and affection upon a young girl.

In the story, Joanna enters a convent at the age of eighteen. Her natural desire for motherhood is gratified when a baby is left at the convent door, and she is permitted to raise it. The child, Teresa, grows to maidenhood in the convent under the care of thirty "mothers." At eighteen, Teresa falls in love and determines to leave the convent. The struggle on her part between her love for Joanna and her sweet heart, plus the struggle of Joanna and the sisters, who do not know Teresa or let her go, furnish the climax for this unusual story.

Teresa is played by Evelyn Venable, a young Cincinnati girl, who was a member of Walter Hampden's dramatic company. Kent Taylor plays the romantic lead. Other in the cast are Sir Guy Standing, Louise Dresser and Gail Patrick. Mitchell Leisen directed.

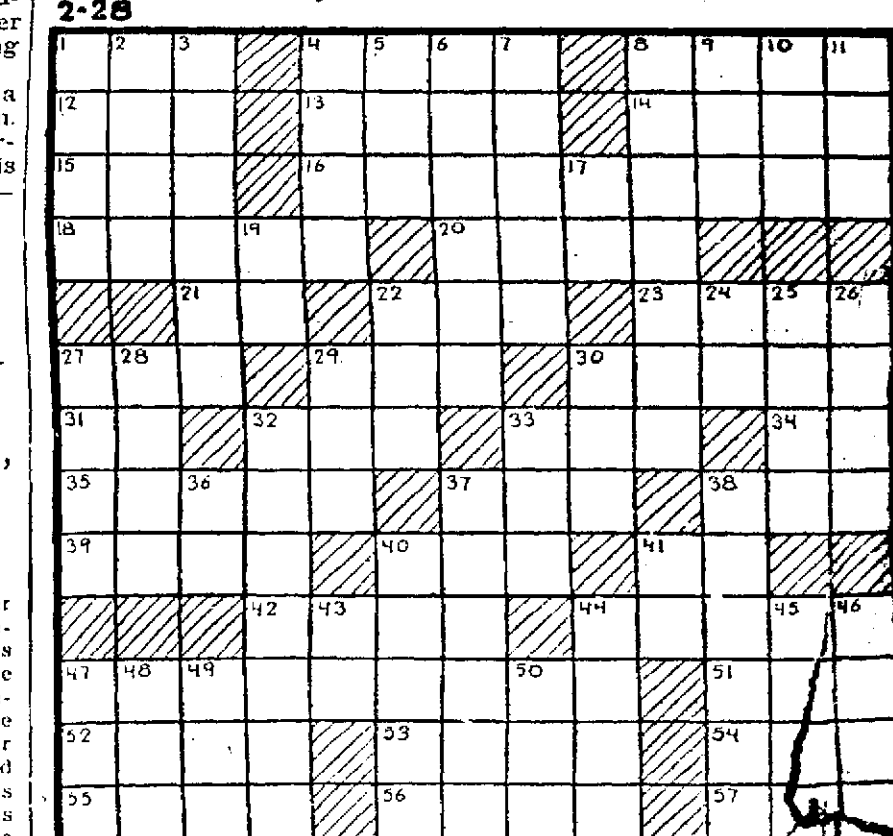

AT THE GRAND
Wall Street, as it was before the fatal crash of September, 1929, is the locale of much of the story of Jack Holt's current starring vehicle, "Master of Men," which will be at the Grand Theater Wednesday.

The picture deals with the life of a multi-millionaire steel and Wall Street magnate who got his start as a "busby" in a steel mill and through sheer force of personality and domination won his way to the top. It closely parallels the life of a czar of the steel industry who recently dominated the industry.

In the supporting cast are Fay Wray, Holt's leading lady, Walter Connolly, Theodor von Eltz and Berton Churchill.

This trouble to be a drawback to me at school and now it hurts me in business. Sometimes I am actually sick and my hand shakes so that I can hardly write my name. I cannot afford to be like this and it proves very embarrassing at times.

Feeling of Inferiority

Self-consciousness is not an uncommon complaint of young adults. It can usually be traced to a foolish feeling of inferiority. This is founded on that state of mind in which a person imagines he is inferior to or certainly not as capable as others. A child who is undersized, weak or sickly and physically unable to compete with other children, may develop what we call an "inferiority complex." This may haunt him for years or throughout life.

As I have said, this feeling of self-consciousness usually develops in early childhood. Careless remarks or frequent criticism from young companions may cause a sensitive child to become self-conscious. Often these remarks are harbored for years and may never be forgotten.

For example, the young girl who

"Self-Consciousness" Is the Bane of Youth

This Trait Usually Develops in Childhood, Says Dr. Copeland; It Can Be Overcome

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

RECENTLY, I have received an unusual number of letters from young readers requesting advice about what they call "self-consciousness." A young girl writes, "What can I do to overcome self-consciousness? I am a high school girl and suffer from nervousness when I have to recite before the class. I get so wrought up that I feel sick and cannot eat; otherwise, I am apparently well and healthy."

Another girl writes, "I found this trouble to be a drawback to me at school and now it hurts me in business. Sometimes I am actually sick and my hand shakes so that I can hardly write my name. I cannot afford to be like this and it proves very embarrassing at times."

Too often, these young persons have a feeling of loneliness and a conviction that their elders do not understand them. At this stage, advice and encouragement will overcome the handicap.

It is easy for me to write this, but I appreciate how difficult it really is to get that essential help. But do not hesitate to seek advice from your elders. Benefit by their experience and suggestions.

Bear in mind that many of your strange feelings and problems are similar to those experienced by your parents and all of their generation. Do not think you are abnormal and different from other people. You are not, and all such thoughts only lead to greater self-consciousness.

You can remedy your present short-comings only if you make a sincere effort to overcome them. Do not consider yourself as hopeless and inferior to your companions. Train yourself to think you are as good as anybody and you will soon outshine them.

“KNAVES’ GIRL”

By JOAN CLAYTON

SYNOPSIS

To help support her stepmother and stepisters, young and beautiful Patricia Warren, a skilled card player, plays bridge for fifty cents an hour at parties given by the wealthy Mrs. Sycott. Julian Haverholt, noted bridge expert, offers to make Pat his secretary and partner. His amorous advances cause Pat to decline his business offer much to her stepmother's chagrin. Pat meets Clark Tracy, the polo player and her ideal, at Mrs. Sycott's. She is heart-broken to learn he is engaged to the socially prominent Marthe March. Bill McGee, a racketeer, is interested in Pat but she loathes him. However, afraid to refuse his invitation, she accompanies him to a New Year's Eve dance. He is shot by a rival gangster. Frantic, Pat rushes home only to be put out by her stepmother who says the police are looking for Pat. Unable to find employment, Pat turns to professional bridge. Haverholt renews his bridge business offer. Pat accepts. Meeting Pat at Haverholt's home, Clark does not recognize her. Haverholt introduces her as his niece. After the men go, Pat is indignant at Haverholt's pretense. He explains he introduced her as his niece to protect her reputation. Pat is tempted to leave, but Haverholt urges her to stay in the role of his niece, promising her a successful future.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"But if it were found out?"
He said very gravely, "That's one of the chances I spoke of, one of the chances that you and I must take. People know you, the people at the Beaucarme, the people in your block; anyone of them might possibly learn overnight that Patricia Warren had become Patricia Haverholt. That would be bad—bad for both of us." He could be as practical as she could be. He paused, his brows knitted, considering. He resumed very slowly, "I think such an eventuality is happily unlikely. New York is a big town full of a thousand cliques. The society you will move in will be far removed from the Hotel Beaucarme, from all the people you used to know. And, I assure you that your reputation as Patricia Haverholt will be much more secure than your reputation as Patricia Warren. As my niece your tactical position will be many times stronger than your position would be as my secretary. Well, Patricia?"

"I'll stay," she said limply.
Patricia had made her decision. She felt exhausted, suddenly empty. She leaned among the pillows of the divan, spent and pale, one lock of red hair falling across her forehead, her dark eyes following Haverholt as he strode up and down the room, making swift and jubilant plans for the future.

"It's nearly eight now," he was saying. "Mrs. Ellis should be back at any minute; she's my housekeeper, the butler's wife. I'll have her clear out a suite for you. Would you like to go for your clothes while she straightens up your room? You'll want your clothes to-night, won't you, Patricia?"

"I suppose so," she assented wearily. "I haven't so much as a toothbrush with me."
"Better to get everything settled now," he agreed. He paused, asked abruptly, "What sort of a story will you tell your stepmother?"

"My stepmother?" repeated Patricia. She said quietly, "I haven't lived at home for some months. I've had a room by myself since the first of the year. Something happened then that—"

He raised his hand.
"You needn't explain unless you choose. I make no pretence that my own life is an open book."
"There's nothing to explain," said the girl. "Anyhow it's not a secret. On New Year's Eve I went out with a man, a cheap neighborhood bully, a neighborhood boy on the

this trouble to be a drawback to me at school and now it hurts me in business. Sometimes I am actually sick and my hand shakes so that I can hardly write my name. I cannot afford to be like this and it proves very embarrassing at times."

Feeling of Inferiority

Self-consciousness is not an uncommon complaint of young adults. It can usually be traced to a foolish feeling of inferiority. This is founded on that state of mind in which a person imagines he is inferior to or certainly not as capable as others. A child who is undersized, weak or sickly and physically unable to compete with other children, may develop what we call an "inferiority complex." This may haunt him for years or throughout life.

As I have said, this feeling of self-consciousness usually develops in early childhood. Careless remarks or frequent criticism from young companions may cause a sensitive child to become self-conscious. Often these remarks are harbored for years and may never be forgotten.

For example, the young girl who has difficulty in reciting before her class, may have been ridiculed or severely scolded for poor recitations during her earlier school days. If she could overcome her fear and apprehension, it is probable she would be able to recite as well as any other member of her class. If she could only make herself believe there is nothing to be feared and that she is as capable as her classmates, she would calmly recite her lesson.

Too often, these young persons have a feeling of loneliness and a conviction that their elders do not understand them. At this stage, advice and encouragement will overcome the handicap.

It is easy for me to write this, but I appreciate how difficult it really is to get that essential help. But do not hesitate to seek advice from your elders. Benefit by their experience and suggestions.

Bear in mind, that many of your strange feelings and problems are similar to those experienced by your parents and all of their generation. Do not think you are abnormal and different from other people. You are not, and all such thoughts only lead to greater self-consciousness.

You can remedy your present short-comings only if you make a sincere effort to overcome them. Do not consider yourself as hopeless and inferior to your companions. Train yourself to think you are as good as anybody and you will soon outshine them.

Answers to Health Queries

H. D. R. Q.—What causes a burning and tickling all over the body?
A.—This may be due to poor circulation. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

B. T. E. Q.—What should a girl of 13, 5 feet 2 1/2 inches tall weigh?

A.—She should weigh about 90 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height, as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance. (Copyright, 1931, K. F. S., Inc.)

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Connery Trying to Force 30-Hour Bill Despite Johnson's Objections

WASHINGTON—Despite General Hugh Johnson's objections, the House Labor Committee plans reporting out a 30-hour work week bill.

At a committee hearing, the committee's wily little chairman of the committee, William P. Connery, Jr., one-time vaudeville hooper, has set his heart on forcing a record vote in the House.

Last year the Senate passed the Black 30-hour bill, and Connery was all set to put it through the House, when the National Industrial Recovery Act was substituted in its place.

Connery supported the NIRA, but he has never abandoned his first love, the flat 30-hour work week proposal. A strong trade unionist, he is convinced that legislation of this nature, with supplementary safeguards for wage protection, will do more to reduce unemployment rolls than all the codes that can be devised.

Secretary Perkins, Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, and the A. F. of L. are for the shorter work week. Johnson is not opposed to the principle, but does not believe it can be achieved by legislation. He contends at present that industry cannot bear the burden of additional labor costs necessitated by a reduced work week—unless there is simultaneous wage reduction.

He favors tackling the problem through the code route, has already set the machinery in motion for a general leveling off of the average code work schedule of 40 hours weekly to around 36. This, he says, is as much as industry can stand for at present.

Diplomatic Reporting
The State Department watched the riots in Vienna with genuine worry and concern. If Italian troops—massed in the Tyrol, crossed the border—war in Europe was almost unavoidable.

Secretary Hull scanned the headlines in the newspaper, awaited reports from A. W. Killefoth, his charge d'affaires in Vienna. It is the duty of every diplomatic officer, without awaiting instructions, to report on unusual events in his country. But from Killefoth no reports came.

Finally the State Department sent a gentle reminder. "Will be glad to have report on situation," its cable read.

More time elapsed. Still no report from Killefoth. Impatient, the State Department finally sent a peremptory demand: "Send report on rioting immediately," it cabled.

Finally Killefoth's report came. It minimized the disturbance, said only 260 people were killed, whereas every paper in the country placed the deaths at a minimum of 1,000.

George Earle, American Minister to Austria, on leave in the U. S. A., was rushed back to his post.

Merry-Go-Round
Mayor LaGuardia has uncovered a scandal in the New York hospital as bad as that recently unearthed on Governor's Island. Tammany appointed doctors and nurses are accused of graft, criminal negligence, and of beating patients.

A mass of evidence has been taken in the hospitals. The scandal may break any time. William S. Culbertson, ex-Ambassador to Chile, is Washington's latest legal lobbyist. He is representing Gugenheim and J. P. Morgan with large interests in Chile, also various sugar companies with interests in Cuba and Peru. The new bank for trade with Russia is going to extend substantial credits to Cuba as well. In fact, this was one reason the bank set-up was rushed. Will War Come?

Reich and East Prussia, only two million tons a year.

Thus, today, the Poles have created a brand new condition. They have created the facts for the argument that if the corridor were to go back to Germany today, Poland would suffer more than Germany would gain.

But these are only the commercial considerations. Poland thinks today of the corridor in much larger terms. Poland is a new state carved out of three others: Russia, Germany and Austria-Hungary. She has had to be ready at any moment to fight for her existence. One war she has fought, and won, against Russia. Military considerations must rank higher for Poland than for many other countries.

Military considerations make Warsaw inexorably resolved to keep the corridor and to develop Gdynia. As the war with Russia broke out in 1919 German workmen in Danzig struck and refused to lead munitions for Poland. They sympathized with the Poles. This was one reason why Poland, as soon as she recovered from the Russian war, resolved to build her own port.

WOULD NEED SEA
A glance at the map will show another cogent military reason why Poland should wish to keep the corridor away from Germany. The border of East Prussia is only about seventy miles from Warsaw, less than a thirty minute flight in a fast bomber. Now today, as a shrewd Pole observed if Germany wished to move troops into East Prussia for the sake of a surprise attack on Warsaw, she would have to do it by sea. Ship transports are easily observed. It would be difficult to catch Warsaw napping.

But if Germany had the corridor back she could move all the troops she wanted through the corridor, secretly, to the East Prussian border a stone's throw from Warsaw.

For all these reasons Poland today is immovably resolved to keep the corridor. Poland is convinced that to give up the corridor would mean to invite a new dismemberment, a new partition, and the death of the new Polish state.

But today the panorama of Gdynia is Poland's best propaganda. There below us, out into the steel gray waters of the Baltic, stretch two miles of breakwaters. Six miles of wharves are lined with warehouses covering 122,000 square yards.

50 SHIPS DOCKED
Fifty ships are docked in Gdynia today, while yesterday in Danzig only eight ships rested in that old harbor. Danzig is seven hundred years old as a port. Gdynia is ten years old. Last spring Gdynia for the first time passed Danzig in amount of goods turnover.

We went down into the port. Railroad tracks criss-cross the city in a web that hums with traffic. Into the new passenger terminal a freight train came up with a shiny steel gangplank fresh from a Polish mill. For the last five years an average of 20,000 passengers a year have entered and left the port. Twenty-nine ships ventured into the embry harbor in 1932.

In 1932 3,610 ships entered and left Gdynia. In 1924 the port had a total turnover of 10,167 tons; in 1932 it was more than 6,000,000 tons. This means that of all the great ports of the continent, only Rotterdam, Antwerp, Hamburg and Marseilles had a larger trade. More than a million tons a year through Gdynia are carried in Polish ships.

NEVER ABANDON
Nothing less than a personal visit to Gdynia will drive home the conviction that Poland will never abandon the corridor without fighting. Germans have promised not to fight the Poles. They are all of buying Gdynia, and giving Poland a corridor through Memel for the return of this corridor to Germany. This may have been one of the German thoughts behind their non-aggression pact with Poland. But the sight of Gdynia refutes the possibility of such a trade.

In the investigation of the question "Will War Come?" the Polish corridor takes a front place. The conclusion at this moment is that if Germany were still in her old mood about the absolute necessity of retaining the corridor, war here would some day be inevitable. But Germany is not in her old mood. Danzig proved that. In Warsaw perhaps the answer may be found whether war over the corridor is merely to be postponed, and if so for how long, or whether it may not after all transpire that here too Hitler may prove a peace-maker.

(Tomorrow Knickerbocker tells from Warsaw how Poland made a peace pact with Germany.)
